Monday Evening, July 24

Invites You to Explain Great Trunk Mystery

An evening of merriment, melody and mystery is the promise made by the famous wonder-working Floyds, who will appear on the first night of the Community Chautauqua program. It is said that Floyd has no equal as a magician and comedian. Mrs. Floyd, who is professionally known as "Mohala," is the first and only woman to offer practical exhibitions of mind-reading on the Chautauqua platform. She is a woman of very charming manner and has an exceptionally pleasing personality which always wins her audiences. Her mind-reading tests border on the supernatural, although of course no claim to such is made.

Albert N. Heilman, a talented pianist and graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, furnishes an appropriate background for the magical entertainment. The costumes, paraphernalia and stage equipment carried by the Floyds are the most elaborate used in this kind of entertainment. The program is divided into three separate parts, and an entirely different attire is adopted for each one, so that pleasant variations in effects are given.
